Rea Gold Outlines Plans for Bissett

180 Full Time Jobs Anticipated

More than 50 people showed up for an informational meeting with Rea Gold's new project manager Hedley Duffield, in Bissett's community Hall Tuesday evening.

Duffield, a mining engineer from Barnsley Yorkshire, England, was the last manager at the now closed Cassiar mine in British Columbia. He told the meeting that he had been told his penance for closing that mine was to reopen another one.

Duffield said Rea Gold acquired the Bissett property in 1989 but that because of high capital costs and low gold prices at that time it did not make economic sense to re-open the mine. But Hugh Wynne who worked with Rea's president Jim Hogan 30 years ago, was able to convince him to take another look at the project.

He said Rea looked at the options available to them, especially the possibility of increasing the rate of production. They found that the production rate could easily be expanded to 1000 tonnes per day, and that mining costs could be substantially reduced by reducing the cost of handling ore by modifications to the underground workings of the mine.

Duffield said the favourable attitude of the Manitoba government towards mining development, coupled with a higher price for gold, and the lower value of the Canadian dollar, combined with the improvements in mine operating costs now make it practical to proceed with re-opening the mine.

"But I have to emphasize, We are not there yet" He said. "there is still a lot of work to do."

Duffield said de-watering of the mine would begin Wednesday (December 15) and when complete, a three million dollar exploration program would begin. He said the exploration program was needed to prove sufficient reserves exist to justify a 1000 tonne per day operating rate. At least another million tonnes of ore are required.

He said previous drilling had shown that the host rock containing the gold bearing quartz veins to continue for an additional 2,500 feet and that the bottom had not been reached, but that drilling program had not properly identified the higher value deposits. The planned exportation program, (from underground, at right angles to the ore body), is expected to demonstrate that the higher value found at the higher levels will continue to the lower levels.

If the anticipated results are demonstrated, Duffield said the mine has the potential for a 15 year operation, with the possibility of continuing beyond that if other potential is realized in the 70 mile strip of mineralization between Bissett and Red Lake.

However he said the mine has the practical potential to produce up to a million ounces of gold. Duffield said he expects the funding for the exploration programme to be in place very quickly. "Brokers are coming to us with offers to place the issue," he said. "Rather than us having to go to them." He said the 27.4 million dollar cost of expansion would probably be financed from the cash flow of Rea's other gold mining operations in the United States.

The mine now employs 14 people and will increase to about 40 within a few months, it will peak in about eight months when production begins and construction of the expansion is underway. Employment will level off at about 180 when the mine is in full production.

Santa Arrives At Walter Whyte School!

by Lorraine Neal

They had waited all month for this, and no bone crunching cold wind was going to stop them. They came by the dozen! Breakfast with Santa! What to a child is more exciting than the thought of that tantalizing moment when they can actually sit on Santa's knee and tell him their secret-heart-of-hearts wishes? Saturday morning, December 11th, approximately seventy to eighty children had just such an opportunity.....for Santa came bouncing, jingling into the gym at Walter Whyte School.

Some were babies, toddlers, kindergarten age, and older, but all were dressed in Sunday best, bright shiny faces eager and waiting. Some were excited as the moment arrived, others were ho hum, like they do this every day.....and some were terrified! But the jovial, affable Santa, and his pal Jingles took it all in stride as he teased, tickled and listened to each and every one tell their secret, and probably some not-so-secret wishes.

It was a wonderful time for all. Breakfast for the approximately two hundred in attendance, was pancakes and sausages, juice and coffee for the parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles. (A wonderful lady in attendance looked for all the world like Mrs. Claus, for she was dressed in red jacket, toque and shirt.)

Many were the volunteers who gave of their time and efforts to ensure the success of this day. We would be remiss if they were not recognized.

First on the list, a big thanks to Walter Fey, and Carol Green, who were at the school in the early dark hours of the morning, next Mrs. Diane Brandon, who was also in attendance very early. Next are all the teachers, and teacher aides, and their respective spouses who unstintingly gave of their time and efforts. Thanks also to Art and Freda Carriere who volunteered to be cooks for the day. (Freda is a former employee, and Art was part of the Honor Guard on Remembrance Day.)

The grill used in the pancake making was donated by East Selkirk Fire Department.....thanks guys! Glen and Cathy Halgren very graciously donated camera and film. Glen photographed each child on Santa's knee. The food was provided by the school, with the notable exception of five boxes of Christmas oranges which were donated by Frank Thibedeau of Mike Mercury's in Grand Marais. Last but not least, thanks to the gregarious and perfect Santa and Jingles! Santa was simply superb!

Note to Belair and Traverse Bay Residents

Season's Greetings to Everyone

'Tis the season to be jolly, but all too often we women find ourselves all wound up in cleaning, chasing dust bunnies (elephants at our house,) and the never ending baking for all the guests who will invariably be dieting anyway.

Why do we do it? Perhaps it's time to go on a crusade and all women unite.....we will all vow NOT to do days of tedious pre Christmas preparations, most of which will be cleaning, but will instead lounge around the house. Sounds pretty terrific, right? I'll bet our consciences would never allow this. Meanwhile....back to serious stuff.....I do hope that when the great day comes, we will all take the time to remember how this whole event came to be. A little contemplative activity about the REAL Christmas can't hurt, and indeed can be pretty positive.

Before going back to chasing dust elephants, I would like to wish everyone, from Victoria, B. C. (yes we have readers in the wild west) to George River, Quebec.....from our house to your house.....

A very, very Merry Christmas, and all good wishes for peace and prosperity in the New Year.

May God Bless!

Some Christmas Stories From Walter Whyte Kids

CHRISTMAS THAT A KID DIDN'T LIKE
 By Cameron Trainor - Grade 3

In 1944 there lived in a big castle, two brothers named Kent, and Brian. Brian didn't like Christmas.

His brother was getting a present for him. On Christmas Day, Kent said, "Merry Christmas!"

His brother said, "Shut up, I hate Christmas!"

Kent went up to his Mom to get his brother's present. Kent went to the Christmas tree. He put the present under the tree. Brian found it. He picked it up.

"Open the present up Brian."

Brian began to think how nice it was of Kent to have spent his allowance on a gift for him.

He felt ashamed. He said, "Thank you Kent for showing me the real meaning of Christmas."

They had a game and Brian won.

THE LITTLE CROOKED CHRISTMAS TREE

by Stacey Fey Grade 2

"Today is Christmas."

Santa said, the elves woke up and Santa said, "We need the biggest Christmas tree."

Santa hooked up the reindeers to the sleigh. The reindeers flew as fast as they could. The elves got the biggest Christmas tree. The little Christmas tree cried and cried.

They took the big tree back home. They decorated it while Santa was looking for a different one.

And he found the sad little Christmas tree. He took it home and they decorated it too.

The end

These are two samples of children's Christmas stories. Hopefully there will be more in the next issue of the Community Voice. All the children at Walter Whyte have been extremely busy practising for the Christmas concert. It is hoped that the readers will love these stories too!

Merry HO HO!

"They Just Don't Make 'em Anymore"

by George T. Lalor

If one showed up today, it wouldn't take our various social services or law enforcement agencies long to scoop him up and put him where he'd have to be like other people. But back in the nineteen-thirties, forties and into the fifties, there were still a few of them around... those rugged individuals who had turned their backs upon society in favour of a life of solitude.

They lived in log hovels tucked away in the woods or perhaps, in dugouts on the lakeshore, and survived on fish and rabbits or whatever else the forest could provide without exacting too much physical effort. Some of them showed up in town from time to time but most seemed happy just to live what seemed to us eccentric lives and let the world roll by without them. Anyone who lived at Pine Falls or environs fifty years ago will certainly remember characters like "Charlie."

Charlie had a little poplar cabin at the bottom of the portage trail at Silver Falls and he was happy there, existing on catfish and potatoes, uncaring about politics or any of the other things that worry people... especially house-keeping. Charlie's house was just the way he wanted it... beyond all hope.

But Charlie wasn't totally opposed to cleanliness. During the summer months he bathed regularly... with all of his clothing on except for his boots. It was not unusual when the weather was hot to see him sitting in the river fully clothed, having what he termed "a good soak". Upon emergence from the water, he would shake like a grizzly bear then dry out in the sun. "Might as well wash everything at the same time," he would explain to us kids who watched on wonder.

But although Pine Falls and district can lay claim to several of such rugged non-conformists, ours were veritable "Mary Poppins" in comparison to those of Northern Manitoba. Everyone above the 53rd parallel was an individualist and so the maverick element there was in relation to the normal... downright unbelievable.

There was "polecat Peter Plummely" who in order to ensure his privacy always kept a family of skunks under his cabin. And further. There were people there so jealous of their private turf that they would shoot at you if you should come too close to it. The Diamond Queen was one of them.

The Diamond Queen, the stories say, had once been married to a diamond merchant who, during a sea voyage from South Africa fell overboard with his fortune in diamonds strapped around his middle. Unable to face the prospect of a life of poverty, his young wife simply went on believing that she was very rich... Hence the secluded island near the "Bay Line" where she kept her imaginary fortune and the ever-ready shotgun to protect it from marauding thieves. But the individual I remember best was "Haywire Bill."

Haywire Bill (not to be confused with Caribou Bill who spent his winters carving arrow heads from shale and his summers selling them to Yanky fisherman as genuine Indian artifacts) lived somewhere in the forest on the shore of Athapap. Not much was known of him except that Haywire never shaved, bathed or got a haircut; that he wore the same clothes year in and year out and that he didn't smell very nice... Once a year, as regular as clockwork, he would leave his hermitage (wherever it was) and came to the little wilderness community of Cranberry Portage... to get very drunk and wrestle a gigantic "Husky" hotel guard dog in the middle of the barroom floor.

Sound outlandish? I suppose it does. But, then in 1950, Manitoba's drinking places were not the classy bars and lounges that we have today. Those beer parlours or bar rooms were for men only... male retreats where one could wear his cap, put one's feet on the table (as long as one didn't kick over the beer) spit on the floor and use any kind of language one desired. The Cranberry Portage Hotel barroom boasted two additional attractions, one of which was "Siggy's Tapeworm."

In 1948 when Siggy the bartender was working in the Arctic, he had eaten some infested fish and so acquired a tapeworm. Surgery had removed the beast... a twenty-five foot parasite which Siggy had preserved in alcohol and kept displayed in a conspicuous place for all to contemplate. But, however stimulating to the mind was Siggy's worm, the hotel's main attraction was the annual wrestling bout between the incomparable Haywire Bill and Jack the hotel guard dog.

But in deference to his memory, I should explain as he explained to me: that Haywire Bill preferred to wrestle bears... not husky dogs. The problem was that bears were not that readily available in the village of Cranberry Portage, even in 1950 and when Bill got drunk, he had to wrestle something worthy of the title "Fierce Opponent."

Under normal circumstances, Jack was anything but fierce; quite content to spend his summer days in slumber, stretched out on the barroom floor across the entrance to the washroom, seemingly oblivious to people treading on his tail. Until one day in autumn, Jack would rise and sniff the air then growl and show his teeth. And everyone would know that Haywire Bill was on his way to town.

Haywire would enter the barroom looking exactly the same as he had the previous year. He would speak to no one as he took a seat in the corner and commenced to drink the free draft beer provided in great quantities by management and customers.

Powerview Student Council News

by Chantelle LaFreniere

This year the Powerview Student Council decided to have a charity dance and donate all the profits to the Rainbow Society of Manitoba. This charity is a non-profit, registered charitable organization dedicated to fulfilling the favourite wishes of Manitoba children up to the age of eighteen years who suffer from life threatening illnesses.

With the help of Rob Mills, Patricia Anderson, Marcie Nelson, Garrett Dugard, Venessa James, the chaperones, the entire student council and anyone else who lent a hand, we were able to make a profit of $324.00. The students had a good time and now so will a child with a dream.

The Food Equation Video

Marilyn Zarecki
Home Economist, Manitoba Agriculture
Beausejour, 268-6015

How Safe is the food we eat?

Manitobans can find the answer to that question in The Food Equation, a new television production that will air January 15 in Winnipeg, Brandon and Portage la Prairie.

The production is a joint effort of several groups with an interest in our food supply, from the farmers who grew the food, to marketing boards, dieticians and home economists. The program was coordinated and produced by Manitoba Agriculture.

The production will help consumers separate food facts from fiction.

Viewers will learn about the myths surrounding food safety, as well as some very real hazards they should avoid.

The title The Food Equation refers to the different elements the industry must balance to produce food that is safe, abundant, high in quality and affordable. Issues discussed in the program include the use of chemicals, control of bacteria and Canada's stringent standards for food regulation, inspection and monitoring.

"These are important questions at a time when farmers in Manitoba and around the globe are being challenged to meet the demands of a rapidly growing world population," said Manitoba Agriculture Minister Harry Enns. "Our ability to balance the food equation will affect the future health and economic well-being of the entire world."

Factual information will be presented through interviews with unbiased experts in food production, nutrition and safety from Manitoba Agriculture, Agriculture Canada, Health Canada, the University of Manitoba, and the Canadian Network of Toxicology Centres.

The program will also look at improper food handling in the home, which is the leading cause of food poisoning.

Interested viewers can obtain a six-page companion booklet on food safety by contacting me at 268-6015. I also have a video copy available to loan.

The Food Equation will be broadcast on January 15, 1994, at 6:00 p.m. in Winnipeg and Portage on MTN.

Local Nurses Give Tips for a Healthy Christmas

Pine Falls Nurses Union

Christmas is a special time of year when family and friends get together to enjoy one another and the spirit of the season. Unfortunately Christmas is also a time when nurses in Emergency wards across Manitoba see an increase in incidents which are directly related to the festive season. For your sake and the safety of your family and friends, the nurses at the Pine Falls Hospital urge you to please follow a few common sense safety tips to ensure that your festive season is a safe and happy one.

Children choking on ornaments, toys and food is a common occurrence during the holidays. Please ensure that the toys you purchase are suitable for your child's age. Small toy parts are a hazard to small children. Often in the bustle and confusion of Christmas children can get onto things not normally available to them. Please supervise your children at all times.

Holidays can mean increased travel to visit loved ones. Allow adequate travel time and make sure you have packed winter survival gear. Please don't drink and drive.

Christmas trees can be hazardous if not properly maintained. Ensure that all extension cords are working properly and are not frayed or worn. Don't have tree lights on for extended or unsupervised periods. Secure your tree to prevent it falling over onto children.

Exercise common sense during outdoor activities. Increased cold puts added strain on your heart.

Ensure that food is properly prepared and stored. Avoid over eating as much as possible. Stomach problems are often aggravated by over-indulgence and rich foods during the holidays.

Holidays can be lonely - incidents of depression and suicide increase. Please remember the sick and shut-ins. A phone call or visit can mean so much.

Nurses across Manitoba will be working throughout the holiday season to ensure that you and your loved ones are well cared for. However, please exercise common sense to ensure that your holidays are spent at home with your loved ones and not in an Emergency ward or hospital.
