by Noreen Ostash

The investigation into the shooting death of Special Constable Rob Thomas, 21, of the Powerview RCMP detachment on March 6 continues.

Corp. Ken Morrison of the detachment says that they are looking for a young man who flagged down truck driver, Rick McC Calder of Lac du Bonnet and told him that the two police officers had been shot and to get help at 367-2222.

McC Calder radioed back to his night foreman and told him what the young man had said and the Community recovering slowly from tragic shock

by Noreen Ostash

Special Constable Rob Thomas was part of a team of twelve police officers responsible for some 3500 square miles of territory surrounding Powerview.

It was during one of their routine patrols that the shooting death occurred.

Special Constable Thomas was a graduate of the May, 1985 class and had come directly to Powerview. He was the adopted son of William and Eleanor Thomas of the Peguis Indian Reserve and had had a keen interest in becoming a member of the regular RCMP force.

The special constable program is one set up by the force to train men and women of native ancestry to work in areas where there are large native populations. Of the 7000 - 8000 people in the Powerview detachment area, about 50 percent are native.

The detachment covers the area west to Victoria and Albert Beaches, north to include Little Black River, Hollow Water, Manigotagan and the Bissett area. The northern patrol cabin is in Bissett. Officers stay in Bissett over the weekend but go in during the week only when called. Routine patrol run out of the Powerview office.

There were questions about the special constable program after Thomas' death, but the RCMP and politicians say that the program is a good one and will be continued. In this instance, it would have made no difference whether the officer had the three months training or the two year training program.

The community is recovering slowly from the shock of yet another violent death in their midst. Last May, Wayne Doyle of Pine Falls was murdered at the Old Pinawa Dam site. Now another young man had died.

Many of the younger members of the community knew all three men as friends. Constable Reg Gulliford has served all of his four and a half years of service in Powerview. Gulliford is an assistant hockey coach and has a young family.

Reaction ranges from calls for a return of capital punishment to a resignation to the fact that no matter what the punishment, there is no going back to the way things were before the shootings.

Vince Harbottle says that people have to learn how to live with one another. He noted that he had heard about a shooting death in Montreal at the same time and realized how different it is when you know the people involved.

When it is someone you don't know you tend to forget about it in a day or two, but when it is someone you know, it really shakes you up, he said.

Others echoed his sentiments. Denis Legasse, owner of the Shell Station, said it means that no one is safe anymore. The idea that living in a small community is safer than in the city just isn't true. The police dug a bullet out of the building. It made him glad he wasn't at work when the shooting occurred. The shock that this could happen here and that it did happen to friends has local residents thinking. There is no sense to it, no good to come of it. It just seems to be a waste.

The Hon. Jake Epp, MP for Provencher says that the free vote on capital punishment will be taken before the next election, but a date for the vote has not been set.

Epp estimates that two-thirds of the P.C. caucus will vote in favour of capital punishment when the vote is called.

In the meantime, people in Powerview, Pine Falls and surrounding area are left to piece together their sense of security which has been shaken by this tragic event.

Thirty-six Duck Lake Ski Club members visited the Maskwa Project on March 1, enjoyed some good skiing and good food.

Duck Lake Ski Club members visit Maskwa Project

On March 1, 36 fortunate members of the Duck Lake Ski Club feasted on a delicious pot luck supper. The day was warm, and the deep snow in the bush made for some interesting skiing at some times. The day was a great success and was in part due to the excellent facilities provided by the Maskwa Project.

The Maskwa Project Incorporated on Bear River Road is organized and run by volunteers.

Its purpose is to provide a retreat center and wilderness campsite. The facilities are available to any club or organization for a small fee, children are half-price. A day rate is also available.

Seminars of varying lengths are held throughout the year on topics from organic gardening to energy efficient construction. For more information contact Nelson Rajotte, 19 Galinee Bay, Winnipeg, Man. R3K 0R9, phone 889-0017.

The area features a stockwall pumphouse, wood sauna with solar heated showers, a screened gazebo on the river, a railway caboose with attached living area and greenhouse, 8 energy-efficient survival shelters, a wind generator, and a beautiful two-storey, energy-efficient home heated with wood.

The house is designed to attract children upstairs leaving the main floor free for parents to relax.

If your group is looking to try something different, then try the Maskwa Project.

The always popular poker derby and wiener roast will be held on Sunday, March 16. Registration will be held from 12:30 to 1:15 in the hospital parking lot. Cash prizes of 25%, 15% and 10% of registration fees will go to the top three hands. This is the last scheduled event for the year, so please take advantage of the beautiful spring weather, and join everyone on the track. This celebration of spring always attracts members spanning six or seven decades. You cannot be too young or too old to enjoy the fresh air and friendly atmosphere that awaits you. Plan to be there.

4-P Festival packs powerful punch

There were thirteen entries in the alcoholic drink category. Six finalists were chosen. In the non-alcoholic category we had two entries. The winners were named by our contest judges, Elie Trudell, Fran Thompson and Sandra Hansen at the judging night at the Old Mill Lounge on February 19.

The winning recipe for an alcoholic drink was submitted by Lynda Nault who won a set of eight highball glasses donated by The Bay. Bernice Phillips won, in the non-alcoholic category, a toaster donated by Riverview Self-Serve.

The 4-P Festival board of directors made the difficult choice of names for our two drinks, from eighteen entries, at the monthly board meeting held on March 3.

4-P Power Pack is the name of our alcoholic drink, submitted by Roland Berard, who won six glasses donated by Boyko's Marshall Wells.

Darryl Parisian entered the winning name for our non-alcoholic beverage 4-P Punch. His prize was a battery-operated wall clock donated by Mel's Jewellery.

foreman called the police. McCaldar stopped a patrol car further down the road and told RCMP Const. Gravel what he had been told.

Indications are that the accused, Edgar Martin Olson of Ste. 28-216 Dufferin Avenue, Winnipeg, opened fire on the two officers when they left their marked police vehicle in order to check out the Olson vehicle which was parked at the Shell Station.

Special Constable Rob Thomas was found beside the passenger's door, while Constable Albert (Reg) Gulliford was found beside the driver's door. After the shooting occurred, the two officers where they fell.

Thomas died instantly and Gulliford received two or three gunshot wounds in the abdomen. He required 12 hours of reconstructive surgery to repair severed intestines, bowels and a main artery in one leg.

The accused entered the home of Harry Fontaine on the north shore of the Fort Alexander Indian Reserve uninvited, carrying a rifle and threatening the occupants, Harry Fontaine, Mary Fontaine (Harry's former wife), and her three children, Gina, 18, Bradley, 15, and Jamie, 2.

Olson contacted the RCMP, told them he had shot the two officers, who and where he was so they had the Fontaine house under surveillance, waiting for something to change in the situation.

Although Olson was drunk at the time he entered the Fontaine home, Fontaine waited until Olson had a few more drinks before overpowering him. Once he had the accused down, he kept punching him. The experience had been terrorizing for Fontaine, his former wife and her family.

Olson was taken to the Pine Falls hospital for treatment of his cuts and bruises and was then transferred to the Health Sciences Centre in Winnipeg. He was released into police custody at 4:00 p.m. on the 6th of March and appeared in provincial court the next morning. The case was remanded for one week. No plea was entered.

Olson was charged with one count of first degree murder, one count of attempted murder, and two charges of forcible entry.

When a shooting death occurs, the safety net of the RCMP swings into motion. Because the deceased was an RCMP officer, the Lac du Bonnet detachment was called in to do the initial investigation.

"Emotions run deep when it is one of your own detachment and it is better that way", Corp. Morrison said.

Road blocks were set up at Lac du Bonnet, Whitemouth, Falcon Beach, Grand Marais, Beausejour and Stead to insure that no one could leave the area.

On Tour — '85 - '86 Season

Hillside highlights

by Jocelyn Stewart

We enjoyed our trip to the mountains, but because of an airline strike, didn't get to the interior ski country as planned. We settled for the view from Vancouver, where spring has really arrived. Not a sign of ice or snow, the crocuses are in full bloom everywhere, and the robins have arrived. Waiting for a bus by a curbside puddle the first morning, we were joined by a red-breasted pair bent on catching worms, their exuberant chirps heralding the courtship season. With any luck, we'll hear that same chirping again soon, right here at home, doubling the pleasure of spring!

The Vancouver Sun for February 24th carried a story about baby pigeons hatched out that day, their nest in a rolled up awning above the writer's downtown office window. The man, familiar with the habits of city pigeons, declared it an unusually early event, and a sure sign that Vancouver would enjoy a long hot summer for the second year in a row. A good thing for Expo '86, which opens in May.

We toured the Expo site by bus, and were much impressed, though puzzled by the fact that there aren't any nearby car park facilities. Someone explained that the new Vancouver "Sky Train," already in operation, was designed to encourage visitors not to bring cars into the area of Expo, but to leave them in parking lots provided adjacent to the outlying Sky Train stations.

Expo '86 is situated along the south shore of False Creek in old downtown Vancouver and many derelict buildings have been demolished to make room for the fair. Thus the way is paved for much needed urban renewal after Expo is over. The area has long been home to many of the city's poor people, and some seem to have been unfairly displaced, a topic currently very much in the newspapers in B.C. The Expo generated construction boom has disturbed and displaced other creatures too, among them the large blue-grey Common Crane, which inhabits the creeks, rivers and inlets making up the area's shoreline. We were very much surprised and amused to see these long legged birds flying around just outside our eighth floor hotel room window (near the airport) searching for places to roost in the thick green tree tops of the fifty foot high cedars which surround the hotel's wharfside parking area. Cranes usually confine themselves to shallow waterways, and weedy shorelines, but it seems they can adapt to much different environments. A bird would fly in from the water's edge, a large fish in its beak, to land awkwardly in a tree top tangle, near a mate. A kind of slow motion squabble would ensue, during which the floundering birds, all legs and necks, would frequently fall through several layers of branches before the fish disappeared, either down a gullet, or uselessly to the ground. Not much sense to the performance, though maybe it's part of a mating ritual with origins on solid ground. We saw it repeated often, among a colony of about a dozen resident cranes. Interesting to observe that the birds have found a temporary home, seem to be making the best of a bad bargain, and this is likely the only newspaper in which their plight will be discussed in the year of Expo '86.

Monty Vialoux of the Birchwood Hotel at Hillside announces that Gwen Ireland has recently joined his staff as manager of the hotel's dining facilities. Gwen comes to the Birchwood from the St. Regis Hotel in Winnipeg and has twenty years experience in the field of food preparation. Look for new ideas, new menus, new adventures in dining out at the Birchwood! Welcome Gwen, and best wishes. Also watch for a new look in the Birchwood dining room, decorating accomplished under the fine hand of Jean Vialoux.

Local residents will be saddened to learn of the death March 3 of Clifford Harley, at his home in Winnipeg. The Harley's have owned a cottage on Hillside Road for more than twenty-five years. Our sincere condolences to the family.

Voters still undecided

Staff from the Winnipeg River Review conducted a political poll by telephone from February 24 - 28. One hundred (100) people were asked the following questions:

Have you decided who to vote for? If yes, what party and why (candidate or party platform)?

The results were: 59% undecided; 41% decided; 13%

Highway clean-up drive set May 3 4-H Club members to pick up litter

The Manitoba Department of Highways and Transportation will sponsor a provincial highway clean-up campaign by 4-H club members Saturday, May 3.

About 3,000 volunteers are expected to participate in the roadside litter pick-up program which will also serve as a fund-raising campaign sponsored by the Government of Manitoba.

Under the program, 4-H clubs will be assigned to clean up specific sections along highways. Those clubs completing litter pick-up for an assigned area will receive funds to support 4-H activities.

Participating clubs will be supplied with garbage bags and safety vests. Highways and Transportation staff will assist adult volunteers with the supervision of 4-H club members participating in the clean-up program.

Motorists travelling on provincial trunk highways and provincial roads throughout Manitoba are requested to drive with extra caution in areas designated for the May 3 litter pick-up.

In the event of inclement weather, the program will be rescheduled for Saturday, May 10.

none of your business; 18% NDP (95% party platform, 5% candidate); 8% PC (75% party platform, 25% candidate); 2% Liberal (100% party platform); 0% COR.

Our political analysts, with some help from the Winnipeg firm Angus & Holstein (to avoid the bull) have come to the far-reaching conclusion that the undecided voters will win the next election.

The main reasons for this are that the decided voters are very much split with the familiar NDP with 18% being the largest contender. Second in line are the "None of your business" (NYOB) voters. This group is also relatively new in the political arena and its party platform and candidate have not yet been declared.

The PC with 8% of the popular vote was highest among all parties in which the supporters actually recognized the candidate (two of the eight voters).

And yes, there are two Liberals in our region according to our survey and Angus & Holstein will award a prize to anyone who can locate them.

There are no COR voters in our region, at least no one said so.

We must come back now to what the attraction to the Undecided party really means. They do not have a declared candidate so a large vote for them would mean no delegate. If many or all regions in the province would follow a similar voting pattern, there would be no delegates to the legislature and therefore no government, no regulations, no taxes, no Pawley and no Filmon. We would have a state of bliss so no wonder most people are undecided.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

It was a revealing debate

Dear Sir:

Fortunately our democratic system permits anyone to express an opinion, and I feel the need to express mine through the medium of your newspaper. The "Meet the Candidate" forum conducted at the Lac du Bonnet Legion Hall this past Wednesday was an eye-opener.

Firstly, it was well conducted by the co-chairmen, Ben Brocker and Russ Preston, and this type of forum is not easy to handle equitably.

Secondly, the debate was much more revealing during the question period than it was during the deliverance of the prepared presentations. Many years ago this writer learned that "he who loses his cool loses the debate". Unfortunately, during the period when the pressure was on, NDP candidate Clarence Baker blew his cool. Liberal candidate Jerry Fontaine did a good job of keeping his, and he did display a good sense of humor and a fine personality. However, his knowledge of important issues and lack of experience in the political arena left much to be desired.

Thirdly, the most revealing feature of the evening was the cool-headedness plus knowledge of local, federal, and even international issues, displayed by PC candidate Darren Praznik. Over the past years this constituency has produced two fine politicians who have served us well, Ed Schreyer and Sam Uskiw. Now we seem to have another one of the same breed and background coming in as a replacement.

As the old saying goes, "I guess we are just lucky"; it looks like Darren Praznik is the man we need.

ENERGY CORNER

Fibreglas window framing

One of the newer products appearing on the housing market the past three or four years is fibreglas window framing. Sometimes the fibreglas material is called glass-fibre reinforced plastic or F.R.P.

If you're thinking about installing new windows on your home to help make it more energy efficient, you may want to consider these fibreglas window frames, as well as the more familiar wood, aluminum and vinyl frames.

One important characteristic of fibreglas window framing is its stability. This is because with the high glass-fibre content of the F.R.P. frames, their co-efficient of expansion is virtually the same as glass.

Another feature is: because fibreglas is a poor conductor of heat and cold, it has an advantage over metal when used as spacer bars for sealed units. The glass remains warmer around the outside edges of the windows when F.R.P. spacers are used. This means that condensation or ice formation on the interior edges is reduced or eliminated.

Whatever type of framing you choose for your new windows, be sure there is at least a half-inch of air space between the layers of glass — whether you install double-glazed or triple-glazed windows. The air space between the layers of glass acts as an insulating cushion which helps improve the energy efficiency of the windows.

Your local Manitoba Hydro representative can supply you with complete information about improving the energy efficiency of your home.

Pipe band donates towards PCH fund

On January 25, 1986 via the "Robbie Burns dance" at the Pine Falls Legion Hall, the Stirling and Centennial Pipe Band raised a total of $356.80. The band had advertised before the dance that the proceeds would be donated to the Sunnywood Manor Personal Care Home fund.

In presenting the cheque for deposit into the fund Mr. MacLeod stated that in all probability another fund-raising event will be held by the band members at a later date.

Pipe Major MacLeod and his band members deserve special recognition for their community spirit in helping to keep the fund-raising thermometer up an uphill course.

Thanks to all those members and participants for making the Robbie Burns event such a very special event. Thanks to the Stirling and Centennial Pipe Band.

Here's a culture quiz ...

Here's a quickie culture quiz. I'll give you a score of surnames of cultural greats. You provide first name and fields of specialty.

Ready? How about Roy, Carr, Kane, Kain, Hood, Karsh, Pratt, Gould, Fafard, Connors, Jutras, Purdy, Lismer, Pinsent, MacEwan, Kurelek, Colville, Laurence, Augustyn, and Krieghoff.

Each of us at the outset of 1986 should have a thought for our culture; it may be one of the major stories of the year.

Culture as a word is difficult to pin down. It applies to bees and bacteria, to fields and forests. But when we talk of Canada's "cultural identity," we mean those distinctively Canadian artistic pursuits which stimulate intellectual development.

It will not be easy to keep this culture intact in the face of that U.S. communication which threatens to engulf us. It will be clearly impossible if the Mulroney government puts the cultural industry up for sale in free-trade talks. If we lose control of papers and magazines, radio and TV stations, printers and book publishers, we may as well surrender.

On the prairies, culture is in the weeklies on a regular basis. Every ethnic festival is another celebration of our culture. On a regular basis I read feature articles on craft-and-culture groups, from quilters to writers, who band together in guilds to encourage the extension of their favorite medium.

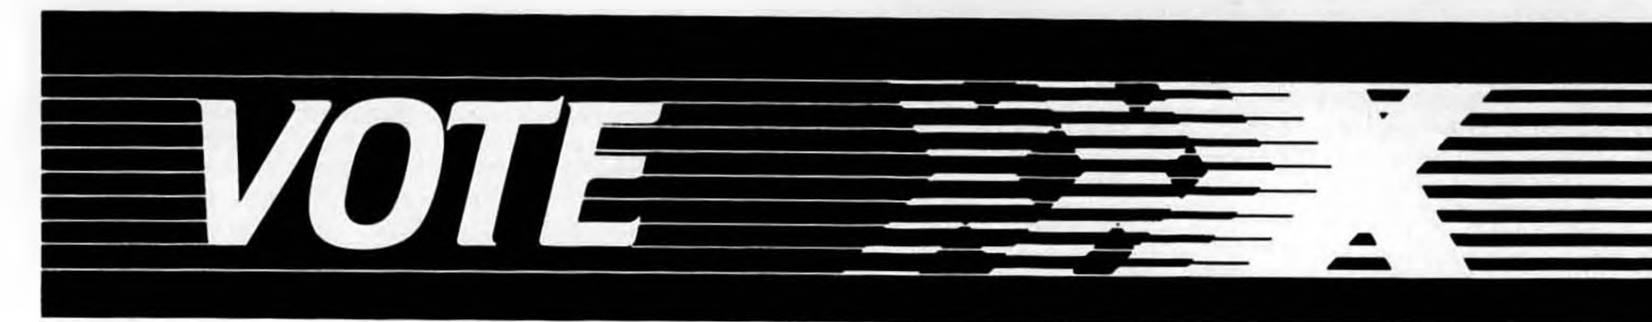

The economics of the ethnic culture is discussed by the Scratching River Post of Morris. Here's a paper strongly opposed to public grants to ethnic societies. "Regardless of whether club membership is open to the public or not, our governments should not be supporting the retention and development of any ethnic culture."

When the Echo of Altona learned that Ottawa wants to encourage bilingualism at the municipal level, it takes an opposing view. It says, "...it is ironic, isn't it, that what the Manitoba provincial Conservatives fought against...less than two years ago will probably happen under the federal Conservatives."

Local culture is examined in the Russell Banner. A writer looks at the $19,500 budget of the recreation commission and finds that $250 was spent on a cultural event, and everything else was muscular. Her conclusion? "Not everyone in Russell and Binscarth is amused and entertained by broomball or volleyball."

I take a guess that here on the Great Plains culture is thriving. The Globe and Mail recently did

More than 350 people attend PC rally

The Brokenhead River Recreation Complex hosted a large PC rally on Sunday with over 350 Conservatives converging from all corners of the Lac du Bonnet riding to show their enthusiastic support for PC candidate Darren Praznik.

Conservative Leader Gary Filmon and the Hon. Jake Epp were the guest speakers, with both men discussing the need for a young, enthusiastic MLA for Lac du Bonnet who would not be afraid to take a stand on any issue that affects Lac du Bonnet constituents.

Mr. Filmon pointed out that he would never undermine the work done by his caucus members on behalf of their constituents. "Howard Pawley has proven that he does not hold the same view in his elected caucus," said Filmon. "We don't have to think back very far to remember how Premier Pawley went over the head of Sam Utkivi and changed a deal already signed by Ahtiki-Price on logging rights in Ahtiki Park. Sam was standing up for the Pine Falls - Powerview area and Pawley knocked him down. This will not happen in my caucus because my powers as Leader of the PC Party of Manitoba can not, and will not, allow me to go against any person that you, the constituents of Lac du Bonnet, elect to represent you," added Filmon.

In Praznik's speech to the crowd, he stressed his commitment to listen to the people he would be elected to represent. "Gary and I have spoken many times about the need to have a strong government which will be made up of MLAs who will all have a say in the decisions which affect the people of Manitoba," said Praznik. "I know in my heart that the decisions you de-

In closing the rally, Praznik asked each participant to donate their time on election day to assist in ensuring that every identified PC supporter gets out to vote. "We have identified enough voters to win," said Praznik. "Now we have to ensure each of our supporters get out on election day." Eighty-seven new volunteers filled in the election-day forms.

MANAGING YOUR MONEY by Harry Mardon

Typically, the new federal budget was one of those good news/bad news things as far as the majority of Canadians are concerned.

There is one tax increase which will affect all consumers. That is the one percentage point increase in the federal sales tax, effective April 1, 1986.

However, the impact of this tax increase will be softened for lower-income individuals and families. The government will introduce a new refundable sales tax credit of $50 per adult and $25 per child for families with income below $15,000 a year.

The credit will be refundable so that families who pay no federal income tax will receive the full benefits, up to a maximum credit per family of $150.

The maximum can be claimed where the person making the claim has up to $15,000 of annual family net income, as defined by the tax rules. Credits will be reduced by five per cent of family income over that amount.

For example, a two-parent, two-child family will be entitled to a maximum credit of $150, which will be reduced as the family's income increases from $1,030.

However, the full impact of the three per cent surtax won't be felt until the 1987 tax year. That's because the surtax is only going into effect half-way through 1986, so in effect the surtax rate for the current tax year is only 1 1/2 per cent.

Therefore, when you make out your 1986 income tax return in the spring of next year and you report your basic federal tax as being $1,000, you only need $15 of surtax (1 1/2% of $1,000). Your next federal tax payable for 1986 would be $1,015.

This surtax scene is somewhat complicated for 1986 by the fact high-income Canadians already are paying a special surtax. It was announced in the federal budget of May 1985, and took effect on January 1 of this year. But that special surtax lapses at the end of 1986.

For this year only the new surtax will be in addition to the earlier surtax imposed on high-income individuals. Thus, for 1986 the combined rate of surtax will be 1 1/2 per cent of the first $6,000 of basic federal tax; 6 1/2 per cent on basic federal tax between $6,000 and $15,000; and 11 1/2 per cent on basic federal tax in excess of $15,000.

We will deal with some of the good news items in the budget in the next column in this series.

LdB candidates present party platforms at meeting

Local candidates, Darren Praznik, P.C., Clarence Baker, N.D.P., and Jerry Fontaine, Lib., took to the floor to present their respective party platforms to a crowd of approximately 250 people who turned out at the Lac du Bonnet Legion Hall last Wednesday evening.

Co-hosted by Ben Brocker and Russ Preston of the Lac du Bonnet Chamber of Commerce and sponsored by the Keystone Agricultural Producers, the meeting gave the voters a chance to hear party views on topics as diverse as paying for the process, the deficit, agriculture, education, the waste repository feared at the U.L., Limestone and hydro development.

Education

Although all parties say that the burden of education taxes will be reduced on the property owner, no one is saying where the revenue will come from. "Other sources" is about as definite as they get.

The P.C.'s want a return to province-wide examinations for grade 12 students and improve standards for graduating students. They want more cooperation between trustees, teachers and the public as to how to improve the system.

The Liberals want more equity between schools, improved services, and a review of tenure and funding policies.

Nuclear waste repositories

All candidates agreed that what is being done at the Underground Research Laboratory is research and all favoured the type of repository being done.

Baker said that the criticisms of the Concerned Citizens are important because they remind us to which where we are going. Repetitive would go into the north where the area is uninhabited.

Praznik said that the people in the community should be given the choice as to whether they want nuclear or chemical wastes stored in their area.

Fontaine said that it is up to Pinawa to educate the public as to what is best.

Winnipeg

Fontaine and Praznik would win by saying that no matter who wins the election, everyone has to pull together for the good of the province and the constituency.

Fontaine said that the constituency is fortunate to have fine candidates, well respected individuals ready to work for the people.

between the United States and the federal government about safer interest rates which would benefit the agricultural communities as well as consumers.

Praznik and Fontaine said no increase in sales tax, while Baker said that if the payroll tax comes off, as the P.C.'s promise, the money will have to come from somewhere. Baker said he would not say no to a sales tax increase because he has no way of knowing what the future needs will be.
