20 graduate business learning course

by Noreen Ostash

Family and friends applauded the effort and work of the 20 graduates of the Business Learning Opportunities program when they gathered at the Great Falls Hall for their graduation ceremonies on Friday, August 18.

The first of its kind in Manitoba, the Business Learning Opportunities (BLO) course included cross cultural awareness, business concepts, marketing, bookkeeping, communications, and computer literacy needed to develop the confidence needed to be successful in the workplace.

Program developers David Zradicka and Don Ayre say there is a formula for success and a formula for failure. The main thrust of the course was to introduce students, aged 16-24, to the formula for success in the information age.

The course, run in cooperation with the Ka-Wawiyak Friendship Centre, was funded by Canadian Employment and Immigration and the host companies who took the students into their business operations for three months after they had completed the three month class training program.

Program coordinator Don Ayre paid tribute to M.L.A. Darren Praznik and project

Concert termed success or failure, depending on personal viewpoint

by Noreen Ostash

It was described as everything from a roaring success to a miserable failure, from a good time to a drunken brawl.

The success of the invitational hard rock Grass Festival depended on whether or not you were for or against the event. Those for the event say that the approximate 1000 people it attracted was about the same as last year's concert in Stead.

They felt that the rain dampened the enthusiasm of those who might otherwise have come. They had expected a few more people, but considering the weather, they were pleased.

Ken Danwich of Traverse Bay Corner and Doug Horn of the Birchwood Hotel said that things were fairly quiet in their businesses, attributing that to the weather.

Ken Danwich expressed his disappointment that he had been quoted in the Winnipeg River Review as having left council over the dispute over the concert. He said he had never been called to give his reasons for leaving council and he would be discussing the matter with council at the September 19 meeting.

Danwich said that he would rather not discuss the event and was upset that reporters were asking questions based on anonymous telephone calls and unidentified sources.

Among the detractors of the event were RCMP police who worked overtime on 16 hour shifts to insure that there were no drunk drivers on the roads. Given that the preventative policing was being done in the rain, they were not pleased to have been called out.

All 14 members of the Powerview detachment were working, as well as members from Lac du Bonnet, Grand Marais and Selkirk. Staff Sgt.

Don Murphy said they set up check points at 3:00 p.m. Saturday to check cars going in for open liquor and took them down at 2:00 p.m. on Sunday. They checked drivers coming out, laying numerous charges as a result.

There were 16 impaired driving charges, 13 Highway Traffic Act charges, 16 arrested for being drunk in a public place and five charges laid under the Liquor Control Act.

Murphy said that the organizers had promised that the 25 bouncers they had hired would insure that no impaired drivers left the ground. He believes that because everyone knew they were there, the numbers were as small as they were.

This was preventative policing, aimed at keeping the activities confined to the field in which the concert was held. Murphy said he went in to the concert area several times to look around, but no enforcement was done. They did not want to create a lot of problems.

Controversy over the event has made its way to the Attorney General's office and the LGD of Alexander council. It was the view of the Attorney General's office that a concert and gathering in a field constitutes a public place and the invitation to bring your own booze is in contravention of the Liquor Control Act.

When organizers decided to

If you tune in to 58 CKY and 92 CITI FM this upcoming weekend you will undoubtedly hear this phrase once or twice as part of the commercial advertising this year's 4P Festival. Although this caption has been representative of all the previous festival years it is even more fitting for this year's festival. Not only do we have new and exciting events but past events are also adding to their repertoire. For instance the St. Georges Community Club has added a family games session to their usual fun filled array of events. The schedule of events taking place in the community of St. Georges is as follows:

Saturday September 3 — Pancake Breakfast, St. Georges Community Hall, 8:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.

Monday September 4 — French Canadian Cuisine and Beer Gardens, and horseshoe tournament, St. George Community Hall, 12:00 noon - 8:00 p.m.; Family Games 1:00 p.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Be sure to come out and enjoy some of these fun filled events!

The 4P Mixed Softball Tournament is being sponsored by Coors this year and as a result there will be even more prizes awarded in addition to those presented in previous years. This three event tournament takes place Sept. 2 and 3 and consists of 36 teams each consisting of five guys and five gals. Each entered team receives free pizza and beer, compliments of Echoes. There will also be prizes and cash prizes awarded to the top teams in each division, as well as an annual trophy donated by Morris Berthelette. To register your team be sure to contact Erik Kekkonen at 367-8892.

There has been an addition to the events taking place at the Pine Falls General Hospital on 4P weekend. In addition to those mentioned last week, there will also be a Pine Falls

Manitou Rapids nearly claims 4 more lives

by Chris Dawson
The Manitou Rapids, which earlier this year took the lives of two Winnipeg residents, nearly added four boys to its list.

The boys, local youths, between 14 and 15 years of age, were swimming where the old swimming hole used to lie. They decided to swim out to an island which was located at the edge of the rapids. As they swam there they were swept away by the current.

Luckily a long time resident of Pine Falls, Ray Hutcherson, was watching the boys swim from his northshore cabin. When he noticed the boys were in trouble, Hutcherson went out in his boat and saved them. One of the boys managed to swim to shore, another was carried all the way down the rapids. The two other boys were picked up by Hutcherson.

Hutcherson says that what he wasn't watching and no one picked them up, the boys would have drowned. None of the boys had a life jacket with them or any other safety device.

This year the river below the Pine Falls dam is extremely high and fast as there is an excess of water above it. This makes the already dangerous river very dangerous. Swimming unsupervised in the river is not recommended as the current is strong in all places. Parents are advised to not allow their children to swim in the river.

unnamed for fear of reprisals, said they did not want the concert in the area. They were afraid to leave their cottages unattended, but did not want to spend the weekend listening to the noise.

One cottager told the RCMP that it did not make sense that the organizers got to collect the money and the people got to pay the bill for the overtime policing costs.

Others thought the idea a good one and went along to see what it was all about. They could see nothing wrong with a bunch of kids having a good time. The RCMP were there to see that nothing got out of hand.

managers Rhonda Houston and Valerie Anderson who saw the brochure and took advantage of the service to provide members of their community with skills they will need to be successful.

In his remarks to the students, MLA Darren Praznik said, "This is not the end of your training, but the beginning." He spoke of the need to gain the skills and the advantages of being able to do that in rural communities.

Mark Reimer, chairperson of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke about the changes he sees in the community on coming back after an absence of 20 years. He is pleased to see the cooperation between the Native and non-Native populations.

Reimer said he welcomes any business these graduates will start. His competition at Mark's Clark's Corner is not

Mr. Pic's or anyone else in town. It is Winnipeg. The more businesses at home, the more likely people will shop locally.

Valerie Anderson, program manager, and Dianne Babiak, instructor, both had words of praise for the work and achievements of the students who not only completed the course but earned outstanding achievement awards for their efforts in the workplace.

Valedictorian Frances Pachkowsky spoke of the class's appreciation for the course and how it changed their outlook on what lies ahead. The students feel they are now better prepared to enter the business world, be it as an employee or as an entrepreneur.

The Hon. Jack Penner (left), Minister of Rural Development, and the Hon. ## Report delivered on rural concerns

When the final report on rural concerns was delivered to the Cabinet Committee on Community Development, it occasioned "a good hearing and two hours of brisk discussion." This is the opinion of Fred McGuinness.

McGuinness was chairman of the Select Committee on Rural Development, sponsored by the Manitoba Community Newspapers Association. With members representing 4-H, Women's Institute, Education, Health and the Rural Chambers of Commerce, this committee assembled all of the material produced at the MCNA-sponsored seminar held in Neepawa in March, and organized it into report form for the Manitoba Government.

Members of this committee, supported by MCNA president Russ Preston, and executive director Barry McCallum, met with a cabinet committee chaired by Northern Affairs Minister Jim Downey.

Following the meeting McGuinness said his committee members were pleased with the hearing. "It was reassuring to learn that they had all read the report in advance, and they came to the meeting with prepared questions."

The report, in general, requests that the government make it possible for rural communities to grow at the same rate Winnipeg is growing. This is believed to be possible if equality is achieved in the level of public services between city and country.

McGuinness said, "We pinpointed instances in which the erosion of public services continues in rural Manitoba, and in which the extreme favoritism shown to Winnipeg is harmful to rural development."

MCNA president Russ Preston echoed these com-

BRIDGING THE GAP

Warren speaks . . .

Politicians asked for image problem

A couple of weeks back, Winnipeg South-Centre Liberal MP Lloyd Axworthy — the Manitoba man who is seeking the party leadership — was deploring the fact that politicians today rank about as high as used-car salesmen in the eyes of the public.

In an interview with me, Axworthy made the point that the public perception of all politicians at all three levels of government, municipal, provincial and federal, seemed to be at an all-time low.

"That's unfortunate," he said, "because even if they are supporting good programs, they are sometimes reluctant to proceed unless they feel they have public support."

He's right, but politicians generally have asked for it.

Across the province over the past five years at the local level we have had a string of incidents ranging all the way from small-town squabbling holding up public business to a couple of councillors caught with their hands in the cookie jar. In Winnipeg, mayoral candidate Councillor Al Golden engaged in a public shouting match in front of TV cameras and radio microphones with Mayor Bill Norrie in which the usually-calm Norrie ripped into his competitor with the comment:

"You son-of-a-bitch," duly reported by the media.

Winnipeg is also watching the comic opera of seeing Councillor Guy Savoie being taken to the Supreme Court of Canada by a St. Boniface residents' group which claims he was in conflict of interest in a rezoning application for an $11-million condominium project.

On the provincial level, two MLAs have been nailed on impaired-driving charges. In Alberta, Ombudsman Aleck Trawick faces a similar count.

Federally, a cynic might be right-on to suggest that we turn Parliament into a penitentiary.

Consumer Affairs Minister Bernard Valcourt is the latest Mulroney cabinet disaster. To remind you, smack in the middle of a federal crackdown against drunk driving, he wheeled around northern New Brunswick on his motor-cycle with twice the legal blood-alcohol level inside him.

The prime minister has now seen no less than nine (nine — count 'em) ministers forced out of office for various and sundry offences, ranging everywhere from outright fraud to conflict-of-interest.

Last week, a former Progressive Conservative MP was charged with defrauding the Ontario revenue ministry of more than $100,000. Norman Warner is accused of both fraud and theft in connecting with incidents that happened while he was in office in 1984. He did not seek reelection last fall.

South of the border, of course, the Americans have been immoral and illegal activity reaching into the highest post in the land what with

Co-operative project to preserve habitat

The provincial government and private agencies have joined forces to preserve Manitoba's remaining critical wildlife habitats.

In making the announcement, Natural Resources Minister Harry Enns said a cost-sharing agreement has been signed by Manitoba Natural Resources, Wildlife Habitat Canada, Manitoba Heritage Corporation, World Wildlife Fund and the Manitoba Naturalists Society.

Enns said the five agencies will provide $220,000 annually over a five-year period towards the project. The province will provide $80,000 annually in addition to administrative costs associated with program delivery. The remaining funds will be provided by the Manitoba Habitat Heritage Corporation, $60,000; Wildlife Habitat Canada, $50,000; the World Wildlife Fund, $20,000 and the Manitoba Naturalists Society, $10,000.

The minister added the project will involve land acquisition, leases with landowners and habitat improvement projects. "During the first year of the program the preservation of Manitoba's tall grass prairie sites will receive priority. Less than one percent of Manitoba's tall grass prairie range remains, making this the ideal habitat type with which to start the program," he stated.

"This project demonstrates the resolve of the government and private conservation agencies to work together for the mutual benefit of natural resources and citizens who value wildlife and its role in our quality of life."

The BOOK NOOK

by Kristine and Carrie

Well, the summer is almost over and Carrie and I have finished our jobs here at the library. Both of us would like to thank Mrs. Bossi and Mrs. Robert for being very kind and generous with us. So Carrie and I want to say bye to all of the Book Nook readers and to the people who visit the library. Our last week here was the best. On Monday, we had our crafts and made pictures with wool. Then on Wednesday we were busy outside with the children's wind-up programme. It was a huge success. The day was perfect for the water-fights and races. We all had a hot-dog lunch after the treasure hunt. The videos have finally come in and are on their display shelves. We have around 50 videos that can be borrowed. There are children's cartoons and educational videos as well as adult educational ones. Make sure you drop in and take a peek.

Watergate and Richard Nixon, not to mention the Spiro Agnew disaster.

Is it, then, any wonder that the public has lost the last vestiges of respect we have for publicly elected officials...? But it's gone even further than that: From calls I receive on-the-air and letters from readers of this and other newspapers, you get a distinct impression that many people now simply believe that all politicians try to manipulate the system. "Only the stupid ones get caught," a Carman resident suggested in a letter to this column three weeks ago.

That is even more unfortunate than the tarnished image, because — believe it or not — there are honest people holding down public office, doing their best to watch how they spend the taxpayers' buck.

But they are ones who usually never make the headlines. In the meantime, if the politicians are suffering this image problem, it is their own fault. They asked for it.

Small towns must offer youth a reason to stay

This is an offering of public thanks to the high school principals at Altona, Biggar, Mossomin, Vermilion, and Pincher Creek. They cooperated with me on an informal survey of 'graduates' intentions. I wanted to learn the plans of these young people following Grade 12, and I also wanted to hear their opinions on the problems currently facing the towns.

I learned a great deal. Most memorable comment? Every mayor should have an enlarged for the office wall. "Unless small towns offer our generation some reason to stay, small towns are sure to follow the example of the dinosaur."

As I reflected upon this, it occurred to me that I do not believe I have ever read a story about a community which made a collective effort to keep its youth at home. From a straight economic point of view it's worth the effort; for 12 years you provide the education, and when they leave, that heavy investment becomes a bonus for another jurisdiction. Educators are currently using the figure of $50,000 as the cost of an education, K-12.

Grade twelves are candid with their reasons for leaving. "B-O-R-I-N-G!" This is the most frequently used word in all the survey responses, with particular reference to a lack of recreational things to do. Next complaint is the lack of jobs. Many said if they were to stay home, their employment prospects were limited to the minimum-wage in a convenience store.

Many small-town characteristics grate upon the sensibilities of the grads of '89. They resent nosiness and lack of privacy. "In this town, everyone knows everyone else's business."

I can only guess when it comes to telling girls' handwriting from boys', but I suspect a variation between the sexes when it comes to hometown affection. I believe it is girls who say things like, "Perhaps I'll come back when it's time for me to raise my family."

Some comments are truly memorable. An example is, "Because my town gave me a strong sense of morals and values, I face the future with confidence." Opposing this is one which says, "I'm getting out of here. My parents can't even entertain the neighbours without everyone having too much to drink."

What do our young people want for careers? I have some specifics.

Leading the pack is health, with 16. Management is second with nine. Religion is third with seven. Tied with five each are education, engineering, law (including police), science (including computers), fine arts, and environmental science. After this the preferences trail off with mechanics at four, media at three, tourism, medicine, economics, pharmacy, and agriculture at two, and a raft of single choices, from beautician to airline pilot.

Tucked in the replies from Biggar was a teacher's note worthy of repetition.

"If grads are to return to their home towns, several things have to happen. Better recreation, cultural and educational facilities will have to be available...governments and business would have to establish programs to encourage people to live and work in rural areas..."

Assurances are needed on effects of new tax

Ministers' meeting sees need to protect municipalities

Manitoba Rural Development Minister Jack Penner and Urban Affairs Minister Gerry Ducharme say they will defend municipalities from any adverse effects of the proposed federal goods and services tax.

Ducharme and Penner said that protecting municipalities from the tax highlighted three days of meetings between provincial and territorial municipal and urban affairs ministers last week.

"Our provincial counterparts were in agreement that municipalities should not have to increase property taxes or reduce services in order to pay the new federal goods and services tax," said Penner.

The ministers said that in 1987 the federal finance minister gave a commitment that municipalities would pay no more under the new tax than under the existing federal sales tax. "We are determined to protect the interest of municipalities and local taxpayers," the ministers said, "and are united in ensuring that this commitment will be met."

At the meeting in Kananaskis, Alberta, Penner also raised concerns over the depopulation of rural Canada.

"Other provinces have started to follow the lead of Manitoba and Saskatchewan with the development of departments of rural development," Penner said. "But long-term development requires local control and initiative, coordination of activities in several levels in both the public and private sectors, and access to government programs and services."

These issues will be the focus of a conference on rural development to be held in Brandon later this year.

Opportunities
I recently attended the one hundred and twenty-eighth Semi-Annual Chicago Gift Show with a fellow colleague. Advertised as the Midwest's premier marketing event, the show attracted more than 1,000 wholesale exhibitors and close to 21,000 buyers.

All types of gift products and ideas were exhibited at the show — kites, glassware, lawn decorations, jewelry, fudge making machines, puzzles, game boards, posters, giftwrap, etc.

Several opportunities were discovered as a result of the show. For example, over one hundred exhibitors want distributors or manufacturer representatives for their products.

Another opportunity is available to those rural retailers in search of unique products to sell. There were some products on display that I have not seen anywhere else!

If you are interested in these and other opportunities, drop in the office to look at the brochures that we have collected and to obtain a list of contact people.

Valuable information

The Eastman Regional Development Corporation (ERDC) now has a data base containing regional information such as population, income, household, labour, education, mobility and farm characteristics. The printed version of the data is presented in graphic form (tables, charts, pie graphs, etc.), and compares the region to Manitoban and Canadian averages.

Similar graphic displays of selected rural municipal, village and town information will be available within the next few weeks.

The new data bases will be an including equity investment, joint ventures, mergers, acquisitions and licensing.

To date the ERDC has sent out approximately two hundred catalogues since the end of April 1989.

Recipients of the catalogue include migration consultants, federal and provincial representatives, private investors, investment clubs, Canadian and foreign embassies and consulates, and many other agencies.

If you are interested in obtaining a copy of the catalogue or in placing your opportunity in it, contact our office at 268-2884.

State of Emergency lifted

by Chris Dawson

The forest fire emergency of Manitoba, issued Sunday, July 23, was lifted on August 4. The state of emergency involved the evacuation of over 23,000 Manitobans.

The fires are now burning in more remote areas where no communities will be affected by the fire. Even though the state of emergency has been lifted the forest fire situation is still dangerous and some travel restrictions and safety precautions are still in place.

The emergency measures act allowed the province to do everything possible to save the lives and property of Manitoba residents. It also allows the government to use personal property to prevent or slow down the progress of the fire or other emergency situation.

This book, which derives its name from the person whose history it chiefly relates, is by the Jews termed Megillah Esther, or the volume of Esther. The history it contains comes in between the sixth and seventh chapters of Ezra. Its authenticity was questioned by some of the fathers, in consequence of the name of God being omitted throughout; but it has always been received as canonical by the Jews, who hold this book in the highest estimation, placing it on the same level with the law of Moses. They believe that, whatever destruction may attend the other sacred writings, the Pentateuch and the Book of Esther will always be preserved by a special providence. Concerning the author of this book, the opinions of Biblical critics are greatly divided; that it is difficult to determine by whom it was written. Augustine and some of the fathers of the Christian Church ascribe it to Ezra. By other writers it is ascribed to the joint labours of the Great Synagogue, who, from the time of Ezra to Simon the Just, superintended the edition and canon of Scripture. The transactions recorded in this book relate to the time Artaxerxes Longimanus, the same who reigned during the time of Ezra and Nehemiah. They commence about the year of the world 3544, and continue through a period not exceeding eighteen or twenty years. The Book of Esther relates the elevation of a Jewish captive to the throne of Persia, and the providential deliverance of herself and people from the machinations of the cruel Haman and his associates, whose intended mischief recoiled upon themselves, thus affording a practical comment on the declaration of the royal sage: "Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not go unpunished; but the seed of the righteous shall be delivered." (Prov. xi, 21).

The scope of Esther is clearly to describe the historical occasion and origin of the Purim festival, and the writer probably wrote in Persia. At the Feast of Purim this book is read through in the synagogues.

THE BEACHES CONNECTION

Rain does not dampen spirits at rock concert

by Jocelyn Stewart

Dwinding sunshine turned to drizzling rain as Greg Jonsson's invitational Grass Festival hard rock concert got underway last Saturday night on Jonsson property northeast of Highway 11 not far from the new beaches nuisance grounds. Due to open at 8:00 p.m., we postponed our arrival until about 9:00 p.m., hoping the rain would let up. Trundling up Highway 11 in our ancient but trusty Volkswagen van, we were part of a gradual stream of vehicles making the turn-off to enter the dirt road leading to the festival campground.

We were two grandmothers, going to a rock concert because a youngster who's kind of special was getting a break. Darren Danwich and his band, Nothing But Trouble were on the concert bill, second up. Four other bands were also to appear.

Gaining admittance wasn't easy. We were stopped twice. First on Traverse Bay Road South by the RCMP who were there to make sure drivers were licensed and not carrying open liquor onto the site, their main aim to keep drunk drivers off the roads. I recognized several of the policemen, one of them our Ward 1 summer constable, Don Cunningham. Once our driver had located his misplaced license, we were passed right along onto the slippery road leading off into the bush, and the concert ground.

The second stop was less ordinary. A very large, cigar smoking, balding male stuck a hairy, tattooed arm in front of our windshield. "The bouncers," I thought, excitement mounting. He demanded five dollars per, and pressed his bearded face against the window, checking us over as if we might be the vilest of saboteurs (our youthful male driver, his ten year old son, and two grandmothers, clad in rain gear — all scared). I shoved a 20 dollar bill at him out the window from behind our driver's head. It was quickly grasped, and we drove on — into the woods, out across a half mile of mowed field with hay stacks — skidding, bumping our way down toward the bottom land parking area.

At last we slithered into a park space near a sort of thoroughfare, in sight of a primitive sign — Main Stage — scrawled in running fluorescent orange letters across what seemed to be an old sheet tied up on recently cut saplings stuck into the soggy earth.

We estimated there were about 150 vehicles in the lot by 9:30 p.m. Vehicles of every sort and description. A dump truck, tarpaulin covering a bulky load in its box; a large ancient bus converted to a mobile home — beer cases stacked against the windows, singing inside; a snarky little MG parked slantwise, an eight-rib nylon tent beside it, fibrillating in the gusty wind; a big old car with tail fins — old even in my day — we called them Cunard Queens; wet and muddied pickup trucks lurched around us in all directions like tipsy ants, their numbers making them immune to propriety; and quite a few newish, respectable, regular varieties of automobile.

There were people walking about everywhere, lots of them tooling around checking out the crowd. Many had drinks in hand, feeling no pain and unaware of the weather. They were just the regulars, who are part of that scene, out to have a good time on what was surely the worst weekend of the summer, weatherwise. Most of the crowd I saw while we were there were young people, some small children, lots of cottagers, some imports. Waiting for further developments we were quite comfortable behind the van's foggy windows. We could easily hear taped music coming from the direction of the Main Stage.

Suddenly there was a pounding on the door, and there was our man, Darren, excited like a kid at his first dance, come round to tell us what was happening. How he found us I'll never guess. But his grannie was riding in the front, and she's a well known lady. "Wait a while," he said, "to see if the rain lets up a bit, nobody wants to get electrocuted with all that stuff we'll be hanging onto. Hey, we've got second spot on the bill, I'll come back and tell you when it's time. Stay dry!" And he disappeared into the murk.

Another few minutes, and somebody else arrived at the van. Darren's mom, Linda, just off work, had come out by herself and she was loaded down with rain gear and a camcorder. This may be her son's big chance. She climbed in and the excitement mounted. Pretty soon, we could hear hand number one starting up and we all piled out and headed for the Main Stage with dozens of other spectators from the campsite.

The first set is short and loud, mild stuff I'd say, but understandable music, if hard on the ears, sound magnitude-wise.

Then Darren is on. He is nervous, we know it. The wind is blowing pretty hard, straight out of the north, onto the stage, right into the performers' faces, rain pelting. Strobe lights changing colors, big gusts of artificial smoke, then Darren is belting out his first number. And it's amazing — the crowd is enthusiastic, shouting their approval. His mom is front and centre, camcorder trained on her boy. And the rain stopped right then, so most of the rest of his performance was almost without drenching. His group, Drew and Chris and Andrew and Brad give him great support and good sound. If there were any hitches, nobody noticed. My favorite number was called Rainbows!

Halfway through the set Darren took the mike and thanked his fans, especially his mom and his grannie and all his family who'd come out to support him and his group. A nice touch.

We saw lots of familiar faces in the crowd. Near us, there was one small skirmish by the snowfence barrier between the crowd and the stage — a couple of drunks exchanged some nasty blows, then quit when two large dogs entered the fray. We edged our way to the front of main stage to get the best exposure. Everybody was dancing, swaying to the rock beat, infectious and fun. But after a while my ears began to hurt, the sound reverberating in my chest was enough to obliterate the heart beat — at my age!

We enjoyed the scene for an hour and a half, and I'd say there were a thousand people milling around the stage area by then.

We made our way back to the van, and headed out of the site without too much difficulty, except for the terrible ride over wet uneven ground to the gate. We dodged cars and vehicles full of concert goers coming to the event in a steady flow.

At the gate the RCMP were busy doing breathalyzer tests on a random basis and we had to wait our turn out. Eventually we were waved along.

A phone call from Constable Don Cunningham this morning to confirm numbers and charges made by the RCMP at the Traverse Bay Road entrance to the concert site. There were 950 people at the event, give or take a few. Sixteen people were given impaired charges. Twelve received six hour suspension of licenses. Seventeen vehicles were towed account high driver alcohol levels. Twenty-seven people were lodged in jail under the Intoxicated Persons Detention Act and six open liquor charges were laid, for a total 78 people violating the law. That lot shouldn't have been there in the first place, though some of them always show up at these things, and if the police hadn't been on hand the problems would have been worse. Thanks to Don and the dozen or so other officers who worked 24 hours straight.

The concert will have, has had in fact, many reverberations. There has been an LGD of Alexander resolution made which is intended to prevent such concerts taking place in the area at any time in the future. It will likely become a by-law. The cottagers will not have changed their opinion of the dangers of such gatherings in their quiet family cottage holiday setting, and if Councillor Ken Danwich resigned because of the threats over Bruce Rathbone's Nine Out Entertainment annual festival proposal, and disagreement with the council resolution, as is rumoured, I am very regretful, along with hundreds of others who are well aware that we are losing one of the best people we've ever had for Ward 1 councillor.

NOW HEAR THIS!

This is an important message about "your hearing". Good hearing is a precious gift and deserves attention and protection. How long has it been since you had your hearing checked? Like your vision, your hearing should be examined regularly. Should a test reveal impaired hearing, help is available. Perhaps medical treatment may be required — perhaps a modern hearing aid may be the answer.

The Garden Plot

by Cathleen Thurston

It is time for the fourth annual zucchini recipe column. Every year gardeners everywhere are faced with the problem of what to do with the boxes, bags, buckets, etc. of zucchini that they have around the house. Here are three delicious ways to use some of them up.

Zucchini-Stuffed Tomatoes

6 medium tomatoes
2 tbsp. (25 ml) butter
1 small zucchini, finely diced
4 tsp. (20 ml) chopped onion
1 garlic clove, minced
1/4 tsp. (4 ml) salt
1/2 tsp. (2 ml) dried basil
pinch of pepper
1 cup (250 ml) toasted, small croutons
Cut a thin slice from the top of each tomato. Scoop out pulp leaving a 1/4" (5mm) shell. Chop pulp; drain well and set aside. Combine remaining ingredients with pulp in an 8-cup (2 L) casserole. Cover and micro-cook on high for 7-9 minutes, until zucchini is tender.
Spoon mixture into tomato shells. Place in a baking dish. Just before serving micro-cook on high for 2-3 minutes.
Do not overcook tomatoes. Serves 6.

Pineapple-Zucchini Bread
1 cup oil
2 cups sugar
3 eggs at room temperature
1 tsp. vanilla
3 cups flour
2 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup drained, crushed pineapple
2 cups grated zucchini
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Beat oil and sugar. Add eggs one at a time and beat until thick. Add vanilla.
Thoroughly combine dry ingredients. Fold in nuts. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with zucchini and pineapple. Stir until just blended. Bake in two greased and floured 9" x 5" loaf pans at 350°F for one hour. Cool in pans for 10 minutes. Turn out on racks to continue cooling. Freezes well.

Easy Zucchini Bake
2 medium zucchini, trimmed and chopped in chunks
1/2 medium onion, chopped
4 eggs, beaten with 1 tsp. milk
1/2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
3 tbsp. bacon-flavoured bits
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. paprika
Combine zucchini in a 10" x 6" glass baking dish. Cover and micro-cook 7 minutes, until zucchini is tender. Drain and set aside.
In a bowl combine remaining ingredients. Stir in zucchini and onion; mix well. Lightly oil 10" x 6" baking dish and fill with mixture. Cover with paper towel and micro-cook 7-8 minutes, stirring halfway through the cooking time. Serves 4.

Your Canada, Your Parliament, Your Business

Fuel for Canada's energy policies

Canada's energy policies may not be a common topic for discussion over coffee in Provencher, but as your energy minister, it is all the while a subject of keen interest and importance which I would like to share with you this week.
When it comes to a sober assessment of energy policy, few organizations match the International Energy Agency for credibility.
That group has recently singled out Canada for praise, saying market-oriented policy shifts in the past five years have allowed Canada to ensure a secure energy supply for the future.

A little history:
Back in November of 1974, when the sudden actions of a few oil-producing giants made energy security appear uncertain, the International Energy Agency was created to defend the collective economic and energy security interests of its 21 industrial, oil consuming members.
To that end, the IEA devised ways to share energy in times of shortages and to coordinate energy policy among member nations so as to promote a stable and predictable energy marketplace. Among other things, member nations are encouraged to look into oil conservation measures and, indeed, beyond fossil fuels altogether as a way to ensure energy security.

Within those operating parameters, Canada has performed well.
In its annual report called Energy Policies and Programs of IEA Countries, the IEA said: "The increased open market orientation of energy policy is bringing Canadian gas and oil markets into being one of the most open markets in IEA countries...Deregulation has proceeded and the Free Trade Agreement with the United States can be expected to have important long-term effects."

Specifically, the IEA argues in its report that the effect of free trade and deregulation will create greater energy security through a more dependable investment climate. That investment in the oil, gas and electricity industries could amount to $250 billion over the next 20 years.

The IEA panel also welcomed increased consultation between Ottawa and the provincial governments, and it recommended such talks continue.
Above all, the IEA reported that Canada's current approach to energy policy encourages flexibility in the system; and in a world of continuing political and economic uncertainty, flexibility is what Canada needs to survive.

Household cleaners and polishers
by Marilyn Zarecki
Home Economist
Manitoba Agriculture
Beauséjour, 268-1411
When cleaning your home, keep in mind that you don't have to replace grease and dirt with dozens of chemicals dangerous to your family and the overall environment. Most of your household cleaning needs can be met with six simple ingredients: vinegar, soap, baking soda, washing soda, borax, and ammonia. Various combinations of these simple substances can accomplish most household cleaning jobs cheaply and safely.
Use caution with all cleaners. Even some non-toxic cleaners are unsafe for consumption.
All purpose cleaner
Mild mixture:
1 gallon (4 L) hot water
1/4 cup (50 ml) sudsy ammonia
1/4 cup (50 ml) vinegar
1 tbsp. (15 ml) baking soda
This solution is safe for all surfaces, can be rinsed with water, and is very effective for most jobs. For a stronger cleaner or wax stripper, double the amounts of all ingredients except water. Use gloves, and do not mix with other compounds, especially chlorine bleach. (Never mix ammonia and bleach; an extremely toxic gas is produced.)
Laundry
Try this recipe: add 1/2 cup (80 ml) washing soda (sodium carbonate) to water as machine is filling. Add clothes. Add 1 1/2 cups (375 ml) of soap. If the water is hard, add 1/4 cup (50 ml) soda or 1/4 cup (50 ml) vinegar during the first rinse.
There are alternatives to enzyme pre-soaks and bleach for tough stains, too. Test each of the following remedies on your fabric first. If it starts to discolor, neutralize the cleaning agent immediately. Acids (lemon juice and vinegar) neutralize alkalies (baking soda and ammonia), and alkalies neutralize acids. Wash after application.
Heavy soils: rub with solution of 2 tbsp. (30 ml) washing soda in 1 cup (250 ml) warm water.
Soiled diapers: presoak in 3

IN MEMORIAM

THOMAS, Richard — In loving memory of my dear husband Richard, who passed away August 25, 1985.
So many things have happened since you were called away. So many things to share with you. Had you been left to stay. So many times I've needed you. So many times I've cried. If my love could have saved you You never would have died. It broke my heart to lose you. But you did not go alone. For part of me went with you. The day God called you home.
Deeply missed and lovingly remembered by your wife Terry and family
Heidi Albertson

CARD OF THANKS
I would like to thank everyone for the cards, flowers, gifts and visits, all was appreciated so very much. Also wish to thank the doctors, nurses and staff for the wonderful care.
Heidi Albertson
